

Debt Payoff Battle Plan

For your Strength: less debt, more power behind every swing.

John says: Debt isn't a character flaw. It's a monster with hit points, and monsters go down when you hit the same one over and over.

1. Name every foe

Debt	Balance	Interest rate	Minimum payment

2. Choose your order of attack

Snowball: smallest balance first. Quick wins keep you going.
Best if motivation is the hard part.

Avalanche: highest interest rate first. Saves the most money over time. Best if you'll stick with it either way.

Either one works. The only wrong choice is switching every month.

3. The monthly routine

- ☐ Pay the minimum on every debt, on time, every month. This protects your credit.
- ☐ Send every extra dollar to the one foe at the top of your list.
- ☐ When it's gone, roll its whole payment onto the next one. Your payment amount never shrinks.
- ☐ Pause new borrowing while you're fighting; no new cards, no "buy now, pay later."

4. Extra damage

- Ask your card company for a lower rate (see the call script loot).
- Tax refund, bonus, side gig money: the top foe takes the hit.
- One "no spend" weekend a month; whatever you didn't spend goes to the top foe.

My first target

Debt: _____ Balance: _____ Extra payment per month: _____ Gone by (estimate):

Educational information from The Financial DM, written in plain language for adventurers of every level. It is not personalized financial, tax, or legal advice; your situation is your own, so talk it through with a professional before making big moves. Protect what matters most, because life is unpredictable. · thefinancialdm.vercel.app